Hi All

I am 28 years old from India I recently dated with a girl at one dating site we both talk to each other almost 15 days online after that we both decided to meet each other I went her city "Nagpur" met there. That day she told me she has divorced before 15 months but he was looking for life partner and she said she love me but when we talk online she never said any thing about it. What should I do now?

I guess if you really love her and you can accept her despite the fact that she had already her first family, that would not be a problem. Maybe she didn't tell you her situation at first because she is afraid that you will ignore her.

Listen of your heart and before taking any decision i will suggest you to take proper information about that girl as she is speaking truth or lie.

The question there is that "do you love her as well?". Are you ready to commit yourself to become a lifetime partner of her? You better think many times before making a decision because you have known her for 15 days only.

You've been in the program before, you know all the signs, both good and bad, so you're better able to assess if she'll make a good wife
You don't waste time kidding yourself that this might work if you just give it one more shot. Experience has made you a realist.
You have more realistic expectation.you know that, yes, you can recover from a heartbreak, and, no, she's not the last womenmen on earth. You also know that it's better to be alone and happy than in a crappy relationship.

may be, you just need more time. don't be in a hurry and tell her about it. and ask her why she said that. how do you think could you ever love her?

To find out whether a girl loves you or not is not so easy! Read these signs that a girl likes you:
She initiates communication. If the first few times, when she wrote or called you and you thought, "Finally!", then you get used to it. And the very moment when she begins to call often, and invites you to a meeting, becomes a signal that this girl loves you.
She presents gifts. She will give you gifts in a different way. If before she felt that you must pay for everything only she want to invest her money in you.

Emotional attachments. When she invested emotionally, trying to cheer you up, tell interesting stories, and just wants to make you feel good, I can assume that she is already in love with you. She takes into account your interests. And she will worry if you do not response her. Finally, she will be inspired by meetings with you.
Good luck
