Say sorry to him! giving her a rose and make smile on her face!
it's difficult to do this but it's work...

I am really sorry to hear that. I think for most of women, they may not be able to accept the child if he/she were not her own child. Maybe you can choose to divorce with your husband and begin responsibility to support someone other's child but your own! Isn't it?

I am agree with hey girl. If the child is not yours then why should you accept. from my point of view you should not close with the child.

There no such perfect relationship. If you really love your boyfriend despite of being unfaithful to you, still you need to accept the reality. You should accept the baby also because it's a part of him. Loving someone is accepting everything about him. I know it's not easy but then you need to.

Don't hate the baby its not his/her fault being born in this world. You should be open to your boyfriend also about what you feel. Ask time for you to accept his child. Forgive him so you can move on from the mistakes he did.

hi there!

i think if you really cant accept the baby, let go of the relationship. for it is not healthy to come up with the same old issue again and again .. but if you really love him accept the fact that people do make mistakes .. (and the baby is the most innocent in the whole issue) hard at first but you really have to forgive and forget ..that is if you want to be in that relationship still ..

good luck..

I think first you should know that whose child/baby is this and if it is of yours then sure you should accept it and make your relationship good. This is the genuine and very practical advice. I am happy with my busty girls from http://*vito.com/.

That is quite a tough situation you got into. If you can't really accept the baby, then there is no point in going through with the relationship since the baby is already a part of his life.

Have you tried to talk to him about it? It's not the baby you resent... it's your bf for cheating on you and getting a girl pregnant, the baby is just a reminder of that. You should turn your anger to your bf not to the baby...

I am really sorry to hear that. It is very tough time for you, if you accept the child, it always hurts you because it is human nature, so this is not fault, but to break relationship is also not a solution.

Now it is very important, how strong your relationship this time. If you think, you can break relationship and can manage to yourself, this will be best solution, because as time you are in relationship, always some issues will create. This is tough decision but one time, after that when time will pass you will feel better, because time is the key for every problem.

Different type of people have different emotion, so to break up decision is may be good for some one, but not for all.

Here are many things are hidden as how is your thinking and emotion, how is your boy friend and how much you can believe him. So you know the best about your boy friend and other things. So you can take better judgement. I will advice one thing more, take some time in your decision and keep every aspect in your mind. One thing more when you take any decision, be bold to take decision.

I hope everything will be good, God is very kind and always with us.

I think you need to leave him for a while and let him think clearly. Give him space, if you can't accept the child tell him directly that you don't. Don't let both of you suffer the consequences of his wrong doing.

There are probably some people that no matter, are never content and will cheat or attempt to. In your boyfriend's case it seems he didn't want to end his past relationships so he basically sabotaged them until they ended. This is actually pretty common. It seems like he cheated on his past girlfriends because he wasn't happy.

The concerning part is him saying his last girlfriend was the love of his life. It sounds like he isn't over her yet. If he still feels that way then you should probably consider taking a break for awhile so the two of you can sort your feelings.

If the little one upsets you, you need to figure out if you value the relationship with your boyfriend. The baby can not do something about it, after all he/she is part of your BF's life. Make up your mind.. Might be hard to do the best thing, don't blame the baby!

16 yrs girl now has a family and two children. She also behaved as the disloyalty child and lack of thought. she now has understand how her mother feeling when hearing her to cry heavily and say three words "I hate you".

She's several years ago is kept intact in the original diary ...

Perhaps this statement is uttered elated but she couldn't stand anymore. When she was child, she saw her brother disrespect to her mother, he had to run back to her mother whispering in her ear: "I will never like him anywhere, I love you so much". But ... when she grown up, she had different thoughts, she understand why her brother behaved like that. She didn't dare her mother, when her mother scolded, she just quietly go to room, sometimes moderating, she just cried. When she was older, she didn't say anything but attitude was very clear. She answered jerkily, didn't say anything. She wanted her mother to know that she was very sad and angried her mother but she did not understand.

Everyday we hear the rules from the female side. But we should not forget about male side. I asked my friend to write down male's rules. At last a guy has taken the time to write this all down.

Eventually, the guys' side of the story: <http://blog.livedating.me/man-rules/>
This is the best advice I ever heard!
