Texting is a great communication tool. It allows you to keep a conversation going without interrupting your life, and you can even talk to more than one person at once. Learning how to text a girl, though, is a skill that you may not have yet acquired. It requires not only knowing how to be confident in yourself and communicate correctly, but also how to use texting to its maximum advantage.

Be Positive

Never text anything negative. This looks like nothing more than a cry for attention, an easy turn-off for most women. Instead, make sure that you only text girls things that are positive. Compliment them or flirt with them, never share information that makes you look weak or pathetic. Bad news and unpleasant conversations are best saved for personal interaction, while texts are just a good way to keep a girl on the hook. If you are willing to use texting correctly, you can make yourself much more attractive.

Keep it Fun

One of the cardinal sins of texting is attempting to text important information. If you want to text a girl, you have to keep it light. You can keep it fun, flirty or even sexy, but nothing important should ever go in a text. Too many guys try to have real conversations through this medium, which can only end with miscommunication. If you want to learn how to text a girl, you need to remember that it is an additional mode of communication and not a replacement for speaking face to face.

Keep it Short

If you want to keep a girl interested, you need to learn how to keep your texts short. This serves a few purposes, all of which will make you more interesting. First and foremost, it puts most of the work of the conversation on her shoulders. If she wants to keep texting, she will. It also gives you a chance to seem a bit more mysterious, and thus more attractive. The key to learning how to text a girl is not learning how to communicate, but rather how to make sure that she stays interested enough to see you in person.

Hello, jayden1!

You have shared the great post. I would like to thank you for that. Here, I want to add some more points in your topic as mentioned below.

1. The one should mind the context of what you're texting to avoid misunderstandings.
2. Don't sound like a creep and don't use clichéd, pop culture lines they can be funny sometimes, and "funny" is generally "good," but you can't always rely on that when texting.

3. Make sure everything you text is somehow related to her. Whether you two have been friends for a while, have been on a couple of dates already, or you've just met yesterday, there's always at least one or two things you know about her. Start from those.
