I'm even more unattractive then most other girls.

Please don't lie to me about weather I can get sex or not.

I'm sorry to hear.. but may I ask how do you determine that you are

I mean, all people are different and have different sense of who's "attractive" and who's not. I know that could sound weird because mass-media has set certain standards, which most people think they should align to. But in the real life it's much more diverse.

How about you focus on establishing relationship first, and not think about "can get sex or not." ? I mean focus on friendship as a first step. At least you will find good friends. And who knows, maybe it will transform into something else..
